Fr Boniface

The first reading and the Gospel of this Sunday teach us to use the things of this world in such a way as to enable us reach heaven. For it is vanity to stick to the worldly goods, and close our eyes to what matters before God. We must be in this world, and not of it. We have to collect the necessary goods of this world by honest labour, and yet remain detached from them. We have to possess, but not be possessed by worldly riches.

No man will be excluded from heaven because he lawfully possessed some of this worldly wealth, but a man will exclude himself from eternal happiness if he lets this world's wealth possess him to the exclusion of God.

St Paul in the readings of today urges us to keep our eyes on Christ with whom we have been raised to a new spiritual level, no longer living in sin, to which we died with Christ and rose to the new life.

So let us be charitable to all, and live meaningfully the new Christian life, Amen.

Pope's Prayer Intention for August, Is for Mutual Coexistence

Let us pray that societies where coexistence seems more difficult might not succumb to the temptation of confrontation for ethnic, political, religious, or ideological reasons..
